COUNTRY WITH CLASS

What happens when a guy from the country hills of PA and a girl from the suburbs of Boston come together? Well, along with a lot of interesting disagreements, you get Jake and Jenny, a duo who brings those two influences together in their music to create a unique country sound with a Southern rock flare that audiences gravitate to.

Recently nominated for “Country Music Band of the Year” by the Mississippi Music Association, their appeal reaches beyond their home base of Boston, MA to national and international audiences.

But for all of the accomplishments and accolades, they know it’s all just secondary to the dream they’ve both held since they started out in music as kids. The experience of immersing yourself in music and sharing that moment with the people around you is nothing short of magic. And it doesn’t take flash, awards, or massive venues to make that happen. It just takes passion, genuine connection, and a focus on what matters the most- how music makes people feel.

“The popular New England duo has released a new song and it’s a bit of a blazing banger. It’s Miranda meets Marshall Tucker, and frankly, it’s a welcome slice of sass. From the opening guitar riff to some soaring vocals, “Across This Bar” is ready to serve you. This is a strong pour from the pair, but it goes down smoothly”

Carolyn Kruse, Country 102.5 radio.
